GOMPERS ASSAILS OPEN-SHOP VERDICT

Wants Congress to Limit Injunction Power of Courts.

TRADES UNIONISM DEFENDED

Head of American Federation of Strike-Secretary Morrison Shows Gain of 80,000 in Membership.

St. Louis, Nov. 14.-President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, devotes a large part of his annual report, made to-day to the thirtieth convention of the federation, to an attack on court injunctions. Mr. Gompers criticises Justice Goff for the open-shop decision made during the gar- $75,000. But the work has been thoroughly ment workers' strike, and slaps at the Sixty-first Congress for failing to limit the injunction power of the courts.

After calling attention to the growth of the federation in this country, Canada, and elsewhere, and denying that trades unionism is narrow, President Gompers takes up Justice Goff's open-

"While this judge's action in this case was not taken seriously, either by the press or by the public," said President "it served to indicate the necessity that exists for a statute restraining the abuse of power by judges. Federal and State, particularly in the issuance of injunctions by which the liberties of the citizens, when these citizens are wage-workers, are outrageously men may be denied by injunction, or by any other process, the right to leave their employment, either singly or in association, for the reason that they desire to secure the union shop; if they may be restrained by an injunction from striking in sympathy with their fellowworkers: if they may be enjoined from striking for any reason whatever, the difference between the so-called free vorkmen and the workmen who must yield obedience to their masters-slaveshas disappeared. The only reason for slaveholding is to compel men to work."

Congress Taken to Task. President Gompers tells the federation that Justice Goff's decision was in the face of the highest judicial authority in the land. Then, he takes up Congress, Mr. Berliner had occasion to return to which he blames for failing to limit the this country, shortly after, he took the power of injunction. Mr. Berliner was forced to return to Washington last July on account of failing health, which required a change of climate. He had been consul at Teneriffe for eleven years, having received his appointment in 1899.

Berliner was born in New York fifty-four years ago. His marriage nine years ago, to Miss Jenny Ottenberg, a graduate of Columbia University, was the result of a pretty romance. Miss Ottenberg, who was interested in collect ng stamps, wrote to all the United States consuls, asking them to save and forward stamps. Mr. Berliner was among hose who sent her stamps, and, incifavor resulted in a correspondence. The two exchanged photographs, and when
